ANNUAL CATALOGUE

—OF—

St. Mary's Academy,

NOTRE DAME, INDIANA,

For the Academic Year 1870-71.

Annual Commencement,

Thursday, June 22, 1871.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA:
BEAL, MILLER & CO., STEAM PRINTERS AND BOOKBINDERS.
1871.

Pupils are received at all times during the year, their session commencing with the date of their entrance.

The pupils are divided into the Senior, Junior and Minim Departments, each having separate class and recitation rooms, study and dining halls, play grounds and sleeping apartments.

The Table of Honor, Weekly Notes, Monthly Tickets, Semi-Annual Examinations and Bulletins, Annual Distribution of Premiums, Gold Crosses, and Crowns, are among the many means made use of to excite the love of study in the minds of pupils and reward the diligent.

The Course of Study is very thorough and extensive, embracing all the branches of a solid and ornamental education. Seven years are required to complete a full course, commencing in the Primary Department, and four years commencing in the Senior Department of French and English. Additional time will be necessary where pupils intend to graduate in a classical course. Graduating Medals are awarded to those only who take the full Academic, Classical or Musical Course.

All students entering the Institution will be expected to take the Regular Course, unless allowed, for satisfactory reasons, to pursue special studies. But every possible facility, will be afforded to those students who find it desirable to devote their whole attention to single branches, or to a limited number selected with some special reference, either in continuing favorite studies or to fit themselves for some future occupation.

The Scientific Departments receive careful attention. Lectures are given through the year by Professors from the University of Notre Dame, or distinguished visitors.

The Institution possesses an excellent set of Chemical and Philosophical Apparatus, choice and extensive Herbariums of Foreign and Native Plants, a fine Library and Botanical Garden.

Each Department of the Institution (i. e.) Senior, Intermediate and Junior, has its own regularly organized Reading Society, (presided over by their respective teachers,) in which two hours every Wednesday afternoon are devoted to reading aloud carefully selected works from approved authors; the pupils at this time are taught to exercise judicious criticisms, either orally or in writing.

Great attention is given to Rhetorical Exercises, Letter Writing and other forms of Composition. The ability to read aloud, not only intelligibly and with correctness, but with that elegance and expressive power which brings out the full force and beauty of the subject is a rare and precious accomplishment, and it receives the most particular attention in every department. Compositions are required from all the pupils every week. A certain number of the best are selected to be read aloud at the Weekly Academic Re-union.

In addition to Class Instruction in Letter-Writing, every pupil is required to write home once a week.

BOOK-KEEPING.—The general principles of Book-Keeping, and a simple system of keeping personal accounts are taught to all the pupils in the Senior Department. This course is extended very thoroughly for any who may desire it.

Bulletins of the pupils' progress sent monthly to parents.

When a student has once commenced any particular branch she cannot lay it aside without the consent of the Prefect of Studies and the Superior.

THE MODERN LANGUAGES are taught by native teachers, and are very familiarly spoken by the inmates of the Institution. The pupils are required to devote certain hours of recreation to conversing with their respective teachers in those tongues. The French forms a portion of the regular course—German, Italian and Spanish optional.

ORNAMENTAL DEPARTMENT.—While the solid studies are regarded as the most important much attention is given to those lighter and more graceful accomplishments which throw a charm over domestic life, and contribute so essentially to elevate the tone of society at large.

MUSIC, in its various branches, is assiduously cultivated. The rudiments of vocal music are taught to all the pupils in the Institution, and the practice of social singing, both sacred and secular, is encouraged to the utmost extent. The Scientific, Vocal and Instrumental Departments are taught by accomplished and experienced teachers.

One wing of the Academy is divided into a large hall, for singing and forty music rooms, each one containing a harp or piano. Independent of the private, weekly lessons, instructions in Harmony and the theory of instrumental music is also given in regularly graded classes, on the European Conservatorium plan. Particular attention is given to pupils who are preparing themselves to be organists. While every facility is offered to obtain a brilliant and scientific musical education, yet the students are not allowed to sacrifice higher interests to proficiency in branches purely ornamental. Those who, from want of natural talent, make but little progress, are dissuaded from wasting time and means which might be used to better advantage.

THE SCHOOL OF DESIGN is furnished with choice models in busts, chromos and oil paintings, and a full course is here given by efficient teachers in all the various departments of Drawing and Painting.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.—Pupils of all denominations received; and, while the utmost care is taken in the religious instruction of the children of Catholic parents, there is no interference with the children of those of a different belief. For the sake of good dicipline all are required to be present at the public religious exercises.

HEALTH.—The remarkable beauty of St. Mary's location, the salubrity of the climate, and the extensive grounds, interspersed with groves and walks, arbors and fountains for the use and recreation of the pupils, contribute greatly to the uniform excellent health of the, inmates of the Institution. Every incentive in the shape of swings-calisthenics, croquet, the graces, and other games, are offered to in duce sufficient exercise in the open air to preserve and promote a vigorous physique.

Of the five large halls devoted to recreation, three are assigned to active in-door amusements when the weather will not permit out-door exercise.

Great attention is paid to the sanitary regulations of the Academy—i. e., in the choice and preparation of the food, the warming and thorough ventilation of the rooms; the hours for rising and retiring—for meals, study and recreation; the rules and regulations affecting personal regimen, etc.

The Prefect of Health is charged with the special supervision of the health of the students, and, in case of sickness, she immediately informs parents or guardians.

While so much attention is paid to the pupils' health, their general deportment is equally the source of unremitting care. Knowing that the charm of what is properly termed good breeding is the aggregate of habits acquired in youth, the teachers fail not, on all occasions, to point out and correct all faults against polite, lady-like deportment. In conversation, the pupils are carefully taught to avoid all that is rude, coarse, insipid or trivial—they are trained to think for themelves, to express their ideas modestly, clearly aud frankly, and taught to use their resources of knowledge, reason and wit with good sense and good taste.

Weekly instructions are given in politeness and etiquette.

It is often a subject of reproach, as well as a regret, that young ladies, after passing many years at school—well instructed in the accomplishments and sciences of the age—are woefully deficient in those household duties which undoubtedly form the most important part of woman's peculiar province. The young lady at school is not placed in the proper position for successful practice of those duties, yet much can be done toward preparing her for them, and guarding her against the danger of forming tastes and habits tending to unfit her for her allotted sphere—rendering its duties irksome and repulsive. For this purpose, oral instruction in the art of domestic economy in all its branches, practical lessons in the kitchen, bakery and dairy of the Institution, with reference for example, to the selection of meats, vegetables, and other articles of food and their preparation for the table, will be given in the advanced classes of the Senior Department, in order to impress the importance of these duties on the minds of the pupils.

Regular hours for sewing are allotted to all the students for the necessary repairs of their wardrobe, and ornamental or plain sewing. The sewing-circles are placed under the direction of competent teachers, who give full and careful instructions to the pupils intrusted to them.

General Rules of Discipline

The Disciplinary Government is mild, yet conducted with such vigilance and energy as always to secure perfect order and regularity.—The pupils are kept within the line of duty more by a sense of honor and justice than fear of punishment; as soon as they enter the Institution they become the children of the House, and the Sisters watch over their best interests with the solicitude of mothers.

1st. All the pupils attend the Religious Exercises with punctuality and decorum.

2d. As soon as the bell announces the beginning of any exercise, every one must repair in silence to the duty she is called upon to perform.

3d. The time of recreation excepted, silence must be strictly observed in all places.

4th. Even during the hours of recreation, silence must be observed on the staircases, in the halls and corridors.

5th. No one must leave the recreation halls or places of exercise without permission from the Sister presiding.

6th. Pupils will write to their parents or guardians at least once a week.

7th. All pocket money must be depositod in the hands of the Treasurer.

8th. The Prefect of Health alone gives permission to go to the Infirmary, and the Prefect of Discipline permission to go to the Wardrobe.

9th. No pupil's will visit home during the session, unless in case of severe illness.

10th. No pupil permitted to borrow or lend clothing, jewelry, etc.

11th. No jewelry, except breast pin and ear-rings, to be worn.

12th. Pupils must carefully avoid expression in the least injurious or disrespectful to religion, their teachers or their fellow-pupils.

13th. No one permitted to sew or study after dinner untill 1 o'clock.

14th. The pupils are forbidden to have private friendships; for instance, no two young ladies should be exclusively together, but social kindness and cordiality should be the bond that unites all in one family circle.

15th. Particular kindness and attention should always be shown by resident pupils to strange students, who should be made to feel happy and at home from the first day of their entrance.

16th. The regular time for receiving visitors is on Thursdays, from 1:30 to 4:30 P. M. Should visitors call on the ordinary class days, the pupil must receive special permission from the Prefect of Studies to be absent from class or study. The Sisters deem it their duty to state that frequent and protracted visits are highly detrimental to the improvement of pupils.

17th. All calls or visits must be received in the public parlor. No young lady permitted to go to the parlors without the permission of the Prefects of Studies or Discipline.

18th. All books brought to the institution by the pupils, or received by them, must be submitted for the examination and approval of the Prefect of Studies.

19th. In order to avoid all objectionable correspondence, letters written or received are examined by the Superior or her Substitute.

20th. Books obtained from the Library on Sunday and Thursday mornings, at 9 o'clock. Each young lady will be responsible for any book of the Library lost or soiled while in her possession.

21st. Neatness in person and great care of clothing and books must be strictly observed. The desks must at all times be kept in good order.

22d. The pupils must cultivate, or create if they do not possess them, amiable dispositions, polite deportment and gentle engaging manners. In recreation hours, strict attention must be paid to the use of correct and refined language.

The happiness, no less than the improvement, of each pupil, is so closely connected with the good order and strict dicipline of the institution, that no young lady who has at heart her welfare and progress in virtue and science, can fail to discover the importance of the foregoing rules.

They cannot respect them too much. Without well defined rules it would be impossible for a house of education to effect any good for its inmates. Without rules every one would act according to her own caprice, preventing others from improving, and gaining nothing for herself; and the house would be disorder personified. When rules are not observed every thing goes wrong; prayers are said without piety; no application in class, no restraint in recreation; in short, no regularity—no fruit from any exercise.

On the contrary, mark the admirable effects produced by the observance of rules.

Every one rises at the first signal, silence is strictly observed, all descend in perfect order from their sleeping apartments, prayer is said in the most edifying manner, and studies commenced without losing a moment. All pass in perfect silence from the study to the refectory, then to recreation, then to classes—without confusion. It matters not how great may be the number of pupils, every duty is accomplished with perfect order.

WEEKLY BULLETINS.

It will be gratifying to parents and guardians to learn that they will receive weekly during the Scholastic Year, the Journal of the Institution, a bulletin of several pages written by a special committee with the view to keep them informed of whatever may interest them at Notre Dame and St. Mary's. The weekly news of two such Institutions would fill up a Journal of no ordinary interest to those for whom it is intended, as will appear from a few of the chief headings, viz: New Arrivals, Tables of Honor, Health of the Institution, Celebrations, Visits of Distinguished Personages, Extraordinary and Meritorious Compositions, or Progress Monthly, Honorable Mentions, Promotions, and whatever may give our patrons an insight into the life of their children or wards. If it be true that whatever affects a child always interests his parents, we may well say that in the course of a Collegiate Year, there are a thousand items which our friends will like to read and communicate to their neighbors, whilst to our pupils it will be a pleasure and a new incitement to virtue, to know that their parents will read such a bulletin every week.

University of Notre Dame

CONDUCTED BY THE

MEMBERS OF THE CONGREGATION OF THE HOLY CROSS.

This important and well-known Institution is situated one mile east of the Academy, on the banks of two beautiful Lakes, and is provided with everything that can conduce to the material comfort and intellectual advancement of the scholars.

Twenty-three Professors—Priests and Laymen—all perfectly competent to teach all the branches of a complete Classical, Scientific and Commercial course of instruction—complete the Faculty. The proximity of the Institutions to each other is a great convenience for parents having children at both, when they visit their sons and daughters. The studies and discipline of the Academy and of the University are directed and presided over by the same society, and constructed on the same general system.

Plans which succeed well in one are introduced, when practicable, in the other, and thus the two Institutions come to have an efficiency and perfection which they would never have by themselves alone.

For full particulars concerning this Institution the public are referred to the Twenty-Sixth Annual Catalogue of the University, for 1869-70, which may be had by application to the President Notre Dame, Notre Dame P. O., Ind.
